When You Take Your Vacation

the most necessary article to have with you (after your pocket book) is a bottle of Foley's Colic and Diarrhoea Cure. It is an absolute prevention or cure of all derangements of the bowels caused by a change of water. You are likely to need it. For sale by C. K. Wylie.

George Riley died at his home near Maysville, aged eighty six.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

The farmers have crowded in all the tobacco their fields will hold.

The things that people see are inside of them are not outside. No two people see the same thing exactly alike. One woman may look out at a beautiful landscape and see all the beauty and restfulness and grandeur that there is in it. Another one will look at the same scene and see nothing. The man who is perfectly well and vigorous enjoys life to the full. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes people well. There isn't anything miraculous about it—it is the most natural thing in the world. It simply puts the digestive organs, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, in perfect order and thereby makes the blood pure and rich. All diseases live and thrive on impure blood. Keep a stream of pure, rich, red blood flowing into a diseased spot, and the disease will not stay. A man lives on pure, rich blood, and disease dies on it.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes pure, rich blood. Send 21 cents in one-cent stamps to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page "Common Sense Medical Adviser," profusely illustrated.

Mr. James Perdue, an old soldier residing at Monroe, Mich., was severely afflicted with rheumatism but received prompt relief from pain by using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. He says: "At times my back would ache so badly that I could hardly raise up. If I had not gotten relief I would not be here to write these few lines. Chamberlain's Pain Balm has done me a great deal of good and I feel very thankful for it." For sale by R. C. Hardwick, druggist.

Mr. G. A. Stillison, a merchant of Tampico, Ill., writes, August 10th, 1891: "Foley's Kidney Cure is meeting with wonderful success. It has cured some cases here that physicians pronounced incurable. I myself am able to testify to its merits. My face to-day is a living picture of health, and Foley's Kidney Cure has made it such. I had suffered twenty-seven years with the disease, and to-day I feel ten years younger than I did ten years ago. I can obtain some wonderful certificates of its medical qualities."—For Sale by C. K. ONE HUNDRED CARIBOU.

A Sight in Maine the Like of Which No One May See Again.

"I was trout fishing early one summer up in Somerset county, Me.," said a New York sportsman to a Sun reporter. "My camp was on the shore of one of the many small lakes that abound in that part of the state. One evening, just at sunset, my guide came in, all a-quiver with excitement."

"If you want to see something that neither you nor any other man will ever be likely to see again," said he, "just sneak down to the pond with me."

"I crept stealthily in his wake down through the thick timber to the edge of the lake. It was still light enough at the upper end of the lake, where we were camped, and which was not in the shadow of the hills, for us to see plainly a quarter of a mile along the margin of the water. The guide cautiously parted the dense growth of young birches that fringed the edge of the lake on that side."

"Look yonder!" he whispered.

"I looked and my heart almost jumped out of my mouth. The sight was almost past believing. All along the upper shore of the lake, standing belly deep among the lily pads, in various attitudes of grace and stateliness, the water was alive with caribou. Magnificently antlered bulls stamped and snorted and tossed their kingly heads among meek-faced cows, while in and out among them sported a drove of velvet-coated calves. We counted 57 bulls and cows, and almost every cow had a proprietary interest in at least one calf. We watched this remarkable congregation of caribou in silence—the sight being too much for speech—until the shadows of evening began drawing deeply about them, and we could have seen them only dimly a few minutes later. Then my guide whispered:

"We'll pull on 'em just one, anyhow, and see how many we can drop."

"Selecting each of us a big bull, we fired. A terrified chorus of snorts followed the discharge of the guns. There was a sound of water in great commotion for a moment, and the next instant the woods were filled with the crashing of the flying herd through the thick brush. My guide and I sent the contents of our second barrels after the caribou as they rushed in a confused and thickly bunched mass from the water. In less time than it takes to tell all was as quiet as if nothing had occurred to disturb the solitude of the great wilderness. In the water, their huge hulks showing above the broad mat of lily pads, lay the dead bodies of the two old bulls we had selected as our first targets. On the edge of the lake, one with his head in the water and his flanks stretched on the shore, and the other with his antlers lifted high on land, his hind parts buried among the lilies, lay two other bulls, the victims of the two chance shots that followed the herd in its flight."

"I've seen a good many caribou in my time," said the guide—who was Nat Moore, at that time Maine's greatest caribou hunter—"but the natural history of Maine never calculated on me or anyone else ever getting in among such a congregation of 'em as that was."

"Two or three seasons after that 30 caribou came into that same lake while Nat was there. He shot one, and expected to see the rest of the herd dash instantly away into the woods. To the old guide's surprise, instead of the rest scampering away they seemed to be panic-stricken, and huddled together in the pond, snorting and splashing the water about. It wasn't until Nat had shot and killed seven of the drove that the survivors recovered their wits and removed themselves without any more ado out of the reach of his deadly aim. This was 20 years ago. I have been on those Maine waters every year, almost, since then, and have never seen but three caribou there in all that time, and two of these I saw last year, killing one, a big bull."

Beware of the Other Staircase.

A Paris dealer in old curiosities delivered at the house of one of his customers an image of Christ in old ivory. The price agreed on was 4,000 francs.

The dealer was kept waiting in an anteroom while the purchaser went away with the image, saying he would be back again in a moment with the money. He did not turn up.

After waiting for half an hour the unlucky dupe began to be suspicious. He found that the door by which his client had gone out led to a staircase.

The dealer in old curiosities then saw how the case stood, and informed the police. The thief, however, has not yet reappeared.

A Prehistoric Cave.

A cave containing a large collection of ancient pottery, thought to have been made by the Aztecs, was discovered by a prospector at Twenty-Nine Palms, southern California, recently.

When two Chinamen meet, their way of saying "How do you do?" is "How are your bowels?" It amounts to the same thing. If the bowels are in good condition the rest of the system is pretty sure to be all right. But when they are constipated, it has a half-paralyzing effect on the rest of the body—and the mind too. Headaches, dyspepsia, biliousness, nervousness, poor sleep, weakness, heart palpitation and gloomy spirits, all come from constipation. And that isn't the worst of it: It lays your system open to all sorts of serious and dangerous illness.

It isn't safe to neglect constipation and it isn't safe to use dangerous wrenching cathartics, to overcome it, either. They leave you worse-off than before. What is needed is a mild natural laxative like Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They act surely but without any violence. They regulate and strengthen the intestines to do their own work. When the "Pleasant Pellets" cure you, you are cured. You don't become a slave to their use. Take care the druggist doesn't give you something else he calls "just as good." It may be for him, but how about you?

You might learn a thousand valuable lessons about preserving your health by reading Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. It is a grand book and the present edition is absolutely free to all who send 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only. It contains 1003 pages and over 300 engravings. 680,000 cloth-bound copies have been sold at $1.50 each. This free edition is in strong manilla paper covers, otherwise it is just the same. If it required an annual outlay of $100.00 to insure a family against any serious consequences from an attack of bowel complaint during the year there are many who would feel it their duty to pay it; that they could not afford to risk their lives, and those of their family for such an amount. Any one can get this insurance for 25 cents, that being the price of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In almost every neighborhood some one has died from an attack of bowel complaint before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. One or two doses of this remedy will cure any ordinary case. It never fails. Can you afford to take the risk for so small an amount? For sale by R. C. Hardwick.

There exists no necessity to change that ratio more than to change the length of a yard stick, or the number of ounces in a pound weight.
